Before the 1960s, surfing was largely confined to coastal communities in Hawaii, California, Australia, and parts of Central America. It was a niche activity, rooted deeply in Polynesian tradition, especially in Hawaii where it was considered a cultural art form. Early surfers used rudimentary equipment?wooden boards, often heavy and cumbersome?and the sport was mostly a local pastime, passed down through generations.

The Post-War Boom and Cultural Shift

After World War II, economic prosperity and increased leisure time led to a surge in outdoor recreational activities. The 1950s and early 1960s marked the beginning of surfing's expansion beyond its traditional strongholds.
