Early 20th Century: Traditional Masculinity and Formal Portraiture

At the dawn of the 20th century, representations of men in art and media largely adhered to conventional notions of masculinity—stoic, authoritative, and often solitary. Portraiture and realist paintings depicted men as symbols of strength, social status, and moral virtue. These images emphasized physical robustness and emotional restraint, mirroring societal expectations of male conduct.

Photographs from this era often portrayed men in military uniforms, business suits, or engaged in labor, highlighting roles associated with power, stability, and societal contribution. Male friendships and relationships were rarely depicted explicitly; instead, they were often implied through shared activities or social standing.

Mid-20th Century: War, Brotherhood, and the Changing Face of Male Relationships

The two World Wars profoundly impacted representations of men. Propaganda posters, wartime photographs, and films emphasized camaraderie among soldiers, highlighting brotherhood, sacrifice, and collective identity. These images celebrated male bonds forged in adversity, often romanticized as pure, unbreakable, and essential to national morale.

Post-war media also grappled with redefining masculinity. The 1950s and 1960s saw a rise in portrayals of the suburban family man, emphasizing domesticity and emotional restraint. However, underground art and literature began to challenge these norms, exploring themes of vulnerability, emotional expression, and alternative masculinities.
