Founding and Early Settlement

Saint John's origins trace back to the early 17th century, with European exploration beginning in the 1600s. The area was initially inhabited by the Mi'kmaq people, who utilized the region's abundant natural resources for centuries. In 1604, the French established a settlement called "Saint John" in the region, making it one of North America's earliest European communities. The city's strategic location along the Saint John River and proximity to the Bay of Fundy made it an ideal port for trade, shipbuilding, and resource extraction.

The 19th century marked a pivotal period in Saint John's development. The city emerged as a vital hub for shipbuilding, lumber, and coal industries. The arrival of the Intercolonial Railway in the late 1800s further connected Saint John to broader markets, fueling economic expansion.
